

WE ALL CAN RIDE

At the Community Cycling Center, we are working to remove barriers to bicycling, promote health, build community leadership and skills, and advocate for equity.

We're reaching out to underserved communities and welcoming everyone to join us in the bike lanes because we believe that all people should have access to healthy living and active transportation options.

We're pleased to share with you our 2012 Annual Report.

In 2012, we collaborated with New Columbia's bike committee, We All Can Ride (WACR), Home Forward, Pacific Northwest College of Art, Oregon College of Art and Craft, and many others to design and build a community Bike Repair Hub at New Columbia. What was once a vacant lot is now a community resource for affordable bike repair and a meeting spot for summer rides.

ANDANDO EN BICICLETAS EN CULLY

In 2012, we empowered members of Andando en Bicicletas en Cully (ABC), Hacienda's bike committee, to repair bikes and advocate for active transportation options in the Cully neighborhood. Now, neighbors help neighbors with bike repair and safety lessons and more families are riding together.

2012 BY THE NUMBERS

440

kids chose their first bikes at the Holiday Bike Drive in December

160

adults in workforce development programs received commuter bikes and training in Create a Commuter workshops

27

kids received scholarships to Bike Camp

18

tons of metal, rubber, plastic, and other materials recycled

2,851

bikes donated

1,571

bikes reused

11,231

volunteer hours

10

number of community workshops

139

number of repairs completed (between Sept. and Dec.)

8

number of summertime group rides

"The Hub is important because it sends the unshakeable message that 'You are important. Your bike is important. We really mean this and we're backing it up with tools, a building, our experience, and our time.'"

Yvette Maranowski, WACR member

11

number of community workshops

12

number of Community Bike Educators trained

"Before, I spent the day in my house. Our meetings are a place for me to exchange ideas, be heard, and make friends."

Lourdes Montes, ABC member